

GERMANS IN HASTY RETREAT ACROSS RHINE TO DEFEND ROAD TO BERLIN

PLAN DRAWN FOR RECOGNITION OF GEN. DE GAULLE

Months Of Bad Feeling Would Be Ended By Allied Action

DISCUSSED AT QUEBEC

British More Anxious Than Americans To Sanction New Government

WASHINGTON, Sept. 20—A plan has been drawn up for submission to President Roosevelt, it was disclosed today, which would grant Gen. Charles De Gaulle the recognition he has so long desired.

Under the proposal which would end months of bad feeling between the United States government and the French leader, the phrase "French National Committee of Liberation" would be scrapped, and De Gaulle would be recognized as head of the provisional government of the French republic.

This is as much as De Gaulle himself is said to desire. He includes the word "provisional" in his own title, and plans to have popular elections in France before a permanent government is established.

Officials who disclosed this plan acknowledged that a change has been made necessary by the rapid movement of military events on the continent of Europe. The imminent defeat of Germany makes it necessary for France, which has a great interest in the future of Germany, to be taken more fully into the United Nations councils.

Admission To Council

The recognition which is now said to be planned would carry with it the admission of French officials to the European advisory commission in London, where arrangements are being made for the postwar treatment of Germany.

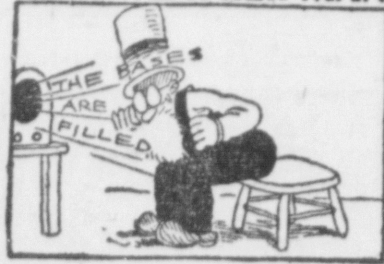

Officials stressed the point, however, that French participation on the commission would be limited to discussion of questions related to Germany, and would not be on a par with the full participation of the British, Russian, and American governments.

Plans for recognition of De Gaulle and admission to the commission in London have been informally initiated by advisers on foreign affairs, but still have to pass the White House. It is believed, however, that this problem was dismissed at Quebec, and that the principal reason for Foreign Minister Eden's coming to that conference was to settle the French question.

Dewey Challenges Idea World, U. S. Could Not Get Along Without FDR

PORTLAND, Ore., Sept. 20—Gov. Thomas E. Dewey trained his campaign sights on California's 25 electoral votes today after a Portland attack on the "indispensable man" theory and an appeal for the election of a president who can get along with the Republican congress which "certainly will be elected this fall."

The GOP presidential nominee, showing no ill effects from the shaking up he suffered in the wreck of his train yesterday, left here at 9:30 a. m. (PWT) for San Francisco, where he will speak Thursday night.

Gov. Dewey said his San Francisco speech, fifth of the current 6,700-mile campaign tour, will be devoted to discussion of a "whole new approach to the relationship between the government of the United States and its people."

"I shall present the philosophy by which I believe we can achieve our great goals for America," he said, "freedom and security for all."

Tremendous Ovation

The Republican nominee and Mrs. Dewey were given a tremendous ovation by the 7,000 persons who jammed the Ice coliseum here last night. Members of the audience had been concerned for hours following word that the Dewey train had rammed into another train near Castle Rock, Wash., with 15 persons injured in the wreck.

Without referring to the mishap, Gov. Dewey, in biting phrases, said President Roosevelt "claims that the United States and the world cannot get along without him."

"He has chosen this as the issue of the campaign," he said. "I accept the issue, and I challenge it."

Disunity Cited

Lashing at the claim of Mr. Roosevelt's "indispensability" to peace and prosperity, Gov. Dewey said that the first requirements are unity in government and among the people, the New Deal has given the nation a continuous demonstration of "quarreling, dissension and disunity."

He referred to the "shrill, abusive tirades" of Secretary Ickes; denunciation of "unspecified Americans as fascists" by Vice President Wallace; the quarrel between Wallace and Ickes, and the "long series of quarrels within the War Production Board," the head of which was "shipped off to China by Mr. Roosevelt himself."

"I do not believe in that quarreling, bickering kind of government," said Mr. Dewey. "An administration which cannot unite its own house even in war can never unite the nation for the tremendous peace tasks ahead."

New Deal Rapped

The Republican nominee asserted that the New Deal, for 12 years, has "continuously sought to bring the congress of the United States into popular disrepute."

"There exists today," he said, "a hopeless division amounting to open warfare between congress and the people."

Under a resolution approved by congress December 26, 1941, the fourth Thursday of November was designated as Thanksgiving Day because of dissatisfaction expressed over President Roosevelt having advanced it one week, beginning in 1939.

Considerable confusion resulted from what became known in some quarters as "Roosevelt Thanksgiving Days" in 1939, 1940 and 1941. The governors of some states proclaimed the last Thursday, instead of the third Thursday, as Thanksgiving Day and in many (Continued on Page Two)

TOKYO DENIES PORTUGAL WILL STRIKE AT NIPS

LONDON, Sept. 20—The Nazi DNB agency quoted Tokyo reports today denying that Portugal intended to break relations with Japan and send 10,000 Portuguese troops from Australia to Timor.

The Nazi broadcast quoted a Japanese government spokesman as saying that relations between Lisbon and Tokyo remained friendly.

During the early stages of the Pacific war, Japanese overrunning the Southwest Pacific invaded Portuguese Timor as well as seizing Dutch territory on the island.

Chief of Police McCrady, who investigated, said Pvt. Zaenglein was injured along a lane near the hospital. After he was wounded he went to the hospital. The chief said his gun and a sack containing 11 shotgun shells were found in his car.

Pvt. Zaenglein, attached to the Army Air Force, was spending a 10-day furlough here with his wife, who lives on East Union street, and his parents. He was due to report back at his base in Monterey, Cal., September 26.

SOLONS CHARGE PLAN TO WRECK DAIRY INDUSTRY

Oleomargarine Becomes Political Target Of GOP Congressmen

CIO DRAWS CRITICISM

Promotion Of Substitute For Butter Alleged At Union Bidding

WASHINGTON, Sept. 20—Oleomargarine became a 1944 political target today as a group of GOP congressmen charged the administration with attempting to wreck the nation's dairy industry through promoting the butter substitute.

The charge was made after groups representing the CIO Political Action Committee testified before various committees of the house and senate studying legislation to put oleo on the market in competition with butter.

Republican congressmen leading the blistering attack against proponents of oleo legislation included O'Konski, Wis.; Short, Mo.; Jensen, Ia.; Martin, Ia.; Clevenger, Ohio, and Knutson, Minn. Samples of it follow:

O'Konski—"For almost three years the C. I. Oleo Hillman and Roosevelt has pushed around, threatened, fined and virtually robbed the dairy farmer... bear this in mind when you go to the polls in November..."

Short—"...these Hillman CIO Political Action groups should be sure to emphasize the fact that the CIO thinks farmers can produce butter at 13 cents a pound; that butter should not even be made... and that oleo is better than butter..."

"I bet that one would give the farmer a belly laugh, or would it give the CIO-PAC speakers a pitchock in the pants?"

Jensen—"Every man who milks a cow or handles dairy supplies in any way should keep an eye on the outfit known as the Committee for Political Action... the New Deal started out to save the farmer but now with PAC leadership they seem to wish to sink the farmer..."

Clevenger—"The dairy industry is a postwar stable industry that will do much for postwar agriculture if the New Deal... and the 18 big oleo corporations do not ruin the industry before that time."

LLOYD'S TAKING NO BETS AS TO WAR END DATE

NEW YORK, Sept. 20—Lloyd's the big British insurance organization, is taking no "bets" on when the war will end.

O. D. Duncan, Lloyd's general counsel in the United States, today scotched reports that the company is issuing policies concerning the war's end.

He said that all contingency risk insurance written by Lloyd's since 1937 contains clauses stipulating that the policies do not cover loss or damage caused "directly or indirectly by any happening through or in consequence of war."

JOHNSON SEES EARLY VICTORY OVER GERMANY

CHICAGO, Sept. 20—Louis Johnson of Clarksburg, W. Va., former assistant secretary of war and past national American Legion commander joined today with those who believe there will be an early end to the war in Europe.

Speaking before the Legion's auxiliary in its Chicago convention, he predicted that "cessation of the war with Germany will come within 30 days—and it won't take three, or even two, years to beat the Japs."

American Troops Take Brest From Germans

ALL German resistance in the Breton port of Brest has ceased, the Nazi agency DNB reported today. Troops of an American division are shown crouching along the walls of battered buildings as they closed in on a stronghold in Lamezeloe near Brest during the drive on the French naval base.

U. S. TOLD NOT TO TRUST NEW DEAL

Bricker Cites Promises Made By FDR And Then Points To Record

HARRISBURG, Pa., Sept. 20—Republican vice-presidential candidate Gov. John W. Bricker of Ohio, enlarging today on his attack on "the broken promises of the New Deal," asserted that the Roosevelt administration "cannot be trusted" by the electorate.

In an address prepared for delivery from the steps of the state capital, Bricker asserted that "campaign promises are solemn covenants with the people" and that a national administration headed by Gov. Thomas E. Dewey of New York, GOP White House aspirant, "will restore integrity to our federal government."

"The New Deal promises us the abundant life," Bricker said, "where is it? On every hand long before the war we faced restrictions, orders and taboos. The Blue Eagle regimented our business and our jobs. The AAA enslaved our farmers, plowed under our crops and slaughtered our livestock."

"The New Deal promised us security. Where is it? Did we find it before the war in the CWA, FERA or the WPA with their doles and their manmade work when 10 million men were unemployed? Can we expect anything better from the New Deal when the war is ended?"

Bricker likewise assailed New Deal campaign promises of economy, pointing to the 100 per cent increase in the national debt during the first seven years of the (Continued on Page Two)

GAYLORD WARNS THAT VETERANS MUST GET JOBS

CHICAGO, Sept. 20—Robert M. Gaylord, president of the National Association of Manufacturers, warned the nation's industry today that it must provide returning servicemen with jobs if it is to escape "creeping collectivism" through increased governmental regimentation.

In an address entitled "See Here, Private Enterprise, Where's My Job?" before the American Legion's convention in Chicago, Gaylord admonished:

"If business management fails this opportunity, then government will grasp it and the creeping collectivism already planted in our land no longer will creep. It will stand erect and walk."

SAWYER GETS APPOINTMENT AS AMBASSADOR

WASHINGTON, Sept. 19—Charles Sawyer, 57, of Cincinnati, former Democratic national committeeman and lieutenant governor of Ohio, today awaited confirmation by the senate of his appointment by President Roosevelt as U. S. ambassador to liberated Belgium.

It was not immediately disclosed when his name would be submitted to the upper chamber of congress, but American diplomatic officials were known to be anxious to speed up the re-opening of the American embassy in Brussels.

Although active in legal, publishing, radio and political circles, the role will be Sawyer's debut in a diplomatic role. Sawyer reportedly was the personal choice of President Roosevelt and it was said that his name already had been submitted to the Belgium government.

MAYBE THERE'S SOMETHING TO THAT 13 JINX

PORTLAND, Ore., Sept. 20—Maybe there's something to that No. 13 superstition, after all.

Passengers aboard Gov. Thomas E. Dewey's campaign train recalled today that the train, involved in a wreck at Castle Rock, Wash., yesterday, had 13 cars and that it left New York City for the west coast just 13 days before the crash.

A group of newspaper men, riding from the wreck scene to Portland behind Gov. Dewey, were told by the driver, a Washington state police captain, that Ripley once featured the number of times 13 had figured in his life.

In the midst of the story, just 13 miles from downtown Portland, the car in which Gov. Dewey was riding was nearly clipped by a huge furniture van.

When the press association car pulled up in front of the Portland hotel, the police driver pulled out his watch and remarked: "It's just five thirteen."

SUMMER RETURNS

Summer weather had returned to Circleville Wednesday as warm temperatures prevailed despite the fact the calendar said September 20.

The official high reading Tuesday was 88 degrees and Wednesday morning the official mercury stood at 86. A year ago high was 74 and low 52.

Only a trace of precipitation was recorded.

CONGRESS SET FOR VACATION

Solons Confident FDR Will Not Veto Reconversion Or Property Bills

WASHINGTON, Sept. 20—Congressional leaders made plans today to begin a seven-week election recess tomorrow or Friday, reasonably confident that President Roosevelt will not veto either the reconversion or surplus property disposal bills.

Indications were, however, that a joint resolution sending both houses home until mid-November, would not be set up until the last minute.

While officially the leadership in house and senate was understood to be awaiting a formal sign from the White House on the veto question, the unofficial word at the capitol was that Mr. Roosevelt will approve the legislation with a statement setting forth his criticism.

Speculation was strong that the President would make his evaluation of the "compromise" bills a stinging rebuke of congress.

The way for the recess was cleared when congress completed final action on the Colmer surplus property bill, establishing machinery for the disposal of an estimated 60 to 100 billion dollars in war goods, and the George reconversion measure was sent to the house for final approval today.

As finally approved, the George bill is minus two important features on which the two houses were deadlocked until the senate gave in.

Senate conferees expressed the hope that new legislation would be introduced later covering the two senate provisions left out, namely unemployment compensation for some two million federal employees (Continued on Page Two)

NORTHERN ALPS PATRIOTS URGED TO STRIKE HUNS

LONDON, Sept. 20—An appeal in the name of Gen. Sir Harold R. L. G. Alexander, commander of Allied ground forces in Italy, and the Italian general staff was broadcast to Italian patriots in the northern Alps today calling upon them to strike an immediate blow for their liberation.

"Hit at once for the liberation of Piedmont and Italy," the broadcast message said.

"Turn the German out. Eliminate the Fascists."

EISENHOWER PROMISES BIG DEVELOPMENTS

Nazi "Advancing Backward" Along Line From Emmerich To Ruhr Valley

NANCY AND BREST FALL

Yanks Crack Gothic Line And Russians Take Heavy Toll Of Enemy

By International News Service

German troops fled in hasty retreat across the river Rhine to defend the highways to Berlin today and Nazi broadcasts admitted that Allied onslaughts in Eastern Holland and against the Siegfried line now comprise a "decisive operation" that will determine the fate of Germany.

With "great developments" officially promised within the next twelve hours, Gen. Dwight D. Eisenhower's headquarters revealed the Germans were swarming across the Rhine in barges along a 50-mile road of retreat from Emmerich on the Dutch-German border to the Ruhr valley.

Three allied divisions now have landed by air along the Rhine estuary, a Berlin broadcast said, while an official German military commentator added:

"This is a decisive operation."

Details Scanty

While headquarters details remain scanty, Paris reported a junction between troops of the British Second Army and Allied airborne units north of Nijmegen, which itself has been penetrated by British armor.

Considerable fighting raged inside Nijmegen, 14 miles northwest of Cleve, northernmost anchor of the German Siegfried line which the new Allied thrusts threaten to turn.

The German high command meanwhile officially admitted the loss of Nancy on the American Third Army front.

The German agency DNB admitted that German troops were also withdrawing across the western Scheldt river in the face of fierce Canadian attacks in the direction of Terneuzen.

Decisive Operation

A military spokesman for the Nazi agency termed the Allied drives a "decisive operation."

DNB asserted that at least three Allied divisions now have landed by air along the Rhine estuary.

The Germans ferried their troops back across the Rhine in barges all the way from south of Emmerich to the Ruhr. The action was interpreted at headquarters (Continued on Page Two)

ALLIES CAPTURE 457,346 HUNS SINCE INVASION

SUPREME HEADQUARTERS, ALLIED EXPEDITIONARY FORCES, Sept. 20—An official statement from Supreme Allied headquarters today revealed that the five armies under Gen. Dwight D. Eisenhower have captured a total of 457,346 German prisoners since the opening of the Normandy campaign.

The totals for the various armies are:

British Second Army (up to September 14)—73,000; Canadian First Army (up to September 14)—52,971; U. S. First Army (up to September 16)—173,375; U. S. Third Army (to September 16)—76,000; U. S. Seventh Army, (to September 16)—82,000.

SEEK FOR VICTORY

CINCINNATI, Sept. 20—A prediction that President Roosevelt would be re-elected "in a landslide" was made today by Marshall Field, Chicago publisher and capitalist and new owner of Cincinnati radio station WSAL.

ers as a German realization that they cannot long prevent the Rhine from being outflanked and therefore are withdrawing the best troops to the east to defend the road to Berlin.

A headquarters spokesman declared that "great developments" can be expected in the next 12 hours.

The German retreat across the Rhine was revealed simultaneously with announcement that the best of enemy resistance in the west of Brest, at the tip of the Breton peninsula, had ceased.

Drive Developing
Headquarters of Gen. Dwight D. Eisenhower declared that the campaign in Holland was developing rapidly following the liberation of the city of Eindhoven and drive close to the Rhine near the city of Nijmegen.

Spearheads of the British Second Army smashed forward 37 miles from Eindhoven to the vicinity of Nijmegen and the German order after a new junction with the First Airborne Army. The new junction between the British and airborne troops was made at Veghel while advanced forces streaked northward to cross the Maas river at Grave, eight miles from Nijmegen, by using a bridge seized intact by units of the airborne army.

The advances in Holland, a headquarters spokesman said, are pressed against very heavy German resistance. Forward elements reached the outskirts of Nijmegen, with the troops battling the Nazis every yard of the way.

Flanks Widened
Allied flanks at the base of the penetration into German-held territory east and west of Eindhoven have been widened and the town of Duizel was liberated. The deadlock at the beleaguered city of Metz continued as American armor probed German defenses, and German and American artillery engaged in heavy duels. Bitter fighting raged near Caracat, 20 miles southeast of Metz, and near Dieuze.

German air might smashed Allied air installations and set huge fires in the cities of Rhym and Nijmegen. German and Dutch fighters. The Nazi radio reported that German raiders appeared over the area during the morning.

Breach Gothic Line
Action on the Gothic line saw American Fifth Army troops achieve a wide breach in the vaunted Nazi defense positions on a mile front above Florence. American fighters drove to within one mile of the key road center of Frenzuela.

The breach in the Gothic line was achieved after a week of the hardest fighting in the Italian campaign. American, British, Indian and British troops of the Fifth Army reported making progress against opposition while flanking the axis in the Gothic line.

In the eastern front action ended as a twin Russian drive to shatter Nazi armies in the Baltic was revealed to be raging its fifth day.

Russ Smash Huns
The Russian First Baltic Army shed huge gaps in German defenses southeast of Riga to within nine miles of the Baltic capital while the Third Baltic army stored ahead in Estonia to seize Valga, key railroad station for the northeastern sector of the Baltic states.

Russian offensives were re-directed to taking a huge toll of man and equipment as German defenses, manned by fighters who had been ordered to retreat, were smashed.

The Pacific Marine First Division veterans appeared to be complete victory in the battle of Peleliu island, with most of eastern coast of Peleliu now in American control.

Airline combat reports, incorporated in a communiqué from U. S. Pacific fleet headquarters, revealed that the pre-invasion bombing of the island had left 117 planes badly damaged on the island. Marines taking field found 77 single engine fighters, 28 medium bombers, and light bombers and four Roosevelt regime, and pledges of "less bureaucracy," comparing the New Deal's 2,000-odd federal bureaus and agencies with the 32 executive boards created by 24 presidents in the last century.

"Was the New Deal ready when war came?" Bricker asked. "You know it was not. Frantically it appealed to all those it had attacked to help save America. Business pitched in. Capital pitched in. Labor pitched in. Agriculture pitched in. Everyone pitched in—and they are saving America in spite of the New Deal."

Then, after reviewing the New Deal record since 1932, including the "court-packing" incident and the revolt of Alben W. Barkley, the president's own majority leader in the Senate, against the cautious presidential veto of the tax bill Bricker declared:

"There is only one conclusion to be drawn from this record of 12 long years. The New Deal cannot be trusted. This nation needs a change and the time for change is here."

"Campaign promises—administrative pledges—are solemn covenants to be kept. Under the leadership of Thomas E. Dewey such promises and such pledges will be translated into performance. His entire record in the public service is convincing evidence that he means what he says. The Dewey administration will restore integrity in our federal government."

LESTER CARY COEY DIES AT BERGER HOSPITAL

Lester Cary Coezy, 35, died Tuesday at 5 p. m. in Berger hospital of complications, following a long illness. Mr. Coezy's home was in Ashville.

He was born May 14, 1909, in Royalton and was the son of Newton C. and Dora Wilson Coezy.

Survivors include the widow, Mrs. Loretta Oyler Coezy; one step-son, George Wolfe, and his mother, Mrs. Dora Lott.

Funeral services will be Friday at 2 p. m. in the Ashville Church of Christ in Christian Union, with the Rev. O. L. Ferguson officiating. Arrangements are in charge of the Schlegel funeral home, Ashville.

transport planes all severely damaged. Six miles south of Peleliu, doughboys of the army's 81st Infantry division plunged into the final stages of the battle for control of the rich, phosphate-producing Angaur island.

Only two Jap pockets of resistance remain to be cleared out on Angaur.

Gen. Douglas MacArthur reported that in the southwest Pacific U. S. bombers had dealt another heavy blow to Jap positions on the Philippine island of Mindanao, while heavy and medium bombers continued the relentless smashing of Jap air installations in the Celebes.

A Tokyo broadcast reported that 200 American planes had smashed at Koror island in the Palau group in a "fierce" raid, and added that 30 Liberators had delivered a blow at Chichi island, in the Bonin group, only 600 miles south of Tokyo.

recognition to De Gaulle than are American officials, and the President was doubtless urged, officials said, to take some action.

From the Washington viewpoint, De Gaulle has qualified to be the recognized leader of a government by reason of two developments since D-day.

1. He has been accepted by the people of France as a leader.

2. He has not run away with the ball. His actions have been cautious, and he has taken pains to reorganize his government to include representatives of all factions of France.

The action of recognition, when it comes, will be taken jointly by the governments of Great Britain and the United States.

NOAH A. ERNST, RETIRED SCHOOL TEACHER, DIES

Noah A. Ernst, 88, retired school teacher, died Tuesday at 1 p. m. at the home of his nephew, Ernst Crites, of Stoutsville. His wife, the former Rhoda Hipshire, preceded him in death.

Mr. Ernst was the son of Jacob and Catherine Ernst. He is survived by one son, William A. of Canton, and three grandchildren. Mrs. Mabel Ernst of East Franklin street was a daughter-in-law.

Funeral services will be Thursday at 2:30 p. m. at the Stoutsville Reformed church with the Rev. R. Johnson, pastor of the church, officiating. Burial in charge of Crites and Van Cleve will be in Maple Hill cemetery.

Friends may call at the Stoutsville funeral home after 6:30 p. m. Wednesday.

COUNTY SCHOOLS RECEIVE SHARE OF STATE CASH

Pickaway county schools Wednesday received checks from the state totaling $25,448, the county's share in the distribution of funds under the school aid measure passed by the Ohio General Assembly Sept. 6.

Warrants were received by the county superintendent's office and mailed Tuesday to the different districts.

County Superintendent George D. McDowell pointed out that payment of the funds to teachers and other school employees was up to each board. All of it must go for increased salaries but it may be paid either in lump sums or in monthly increases.

Under provisions of the bill local superintendents, principals, teachers, clerks of local boards of education, school janitors, school cooks, part time helpers paid by the board of education and bus drivers can benefit. County boards of education do not benefit under the bill and no employee of the county board will share in any part of the increase.

Amounts received by the various districts, based on $8 per pupil of average daily attendance are: Ashville, $2,280; Darby township, $1,656; Doercreek township, $1,664; Jackson township, $1,416; Madison township, $608; Monroe township, $1,600; Muhlenberg township, $664; New Holland, $1,800; Perry township, $1,216; Pickaway township, $1,848; Salt Creek township, $1,448; Soloto township, $2,328; Tarleton, $312; Walnut township, $2,768; Washington township, $1,400; Wayne township, $784.

Ralph G. Willis, son of Mr. and Mrs. Glad Willis, Circleville Route 4, has been promoted to seaman first class. His address is: Ralph G. Willis, S 1/c, U. S. N. S. D. MBI, U. S. N. 134, Fleet Postoffice, San Francisco, Cal.

Correct address of Private Gaylord R. Greenlee is: ASN 35071443, GFRS Repl. Pool, APO 129, c/o Postmaster, New York, N. Y. Private Greenlee is the husband of Mrs. Mary Ann Stapleton Greenlee, of 125 1/2 East Main street.

First Sergeant Franklin Crites, recently returned after more than two years in China-Burma-India theatre of war, arrived Monday from New Orleans, La., for a 25-day furlough with Mrs. Crites and his parents, Mr. and Mrs. E. O.

ASHVILLE

Elmer Neff, son of Mr. and Mrs. Clark Neff, a member of the U. S. Marine Corps, has been promoted to the rank of sergeant, according to word received by his parents.

The Ashville-Lockbourne Lutheran Brotherhood will hold a potluck supper at the Ashville church, Wednesday evening, beginning at 7:30.

The September meeting of the Ashville Community club will be held Monday evening at the Ashville Methodist church. A chicken dinner will be served at 6:30, and an interesting program is being arranged. All members and other men interested in the best interests of Ashville and community are urged to attend. Tickets are being sold by Hoadley Brintlinger and Will W. Fischer.

Ashville elementary school pupils are gathering milk-weed pods to be turned over to the U. S. Government to be used in the production of life preservers. The fifth grade pupils, Mrs. Blodwin Johnson, teacher, has made the best record so far by bringing some 10 bushels of the pods over the week end.

Seaman Clarence Rush, Jr. is home from Ireland on a thirty-day leave. Clarence, who has been overseas for some thirty months, has been in the Navy over three years.

Mr. and Mrs. R. C. Finch, and children, Ann and Rob, of Dayton, were Sunday guests of Mr. and Mrs. George McDowell.

I recently read an interesting letter written by Sgt. David Kuhn, brother of Merle Kuhn, from "somewhere in New Guinea." Sgt. Kuhn, an Army clerk, told of a recent engagement with the Japs and described the climate of the island in a manner that makes one glad to be home in the U. S. With the thermometer registering high temperatures and an annual rainfall of 300 inches, the soldiers often live, sleep, and fight in mud to their chins. Sgt. Kuhn, whose outfit was recently commended by Gen. McArthur for its latest knockout blow to the Japs, writes that "anyone at home who thinks he has a tough row to hoe should think of the boys living in the mud, battling Japs and mosquitoes, and eating K rations before he complains too much."

DERBY

William "Billy" Cox of the Navy is home on furlough. He has had many interesting experiences and has seen many parts of the world.

The W. C. T. U. met last week with Mrs. H. B. Graham, who was assisted by Mrs. Charles Wilkey and Mrs. Troy McPherson. Mrs. C. Bliss led the meeting.

Miss Laura Mantle of Circleville has been visiting the Ridge-way sisters here.

Have a Coca-Cola = Soldier, refresh yourself

...or a way to relax in camp

From southern camps with their moss-hung cypresses to camps near the north woods, there's one place soldiers can relax—the Post Exchange. There they can sit down to "snoot the breeze" together. Have a "Coke", they say. Coca-Cola is a refreshing reminder of what they left behind. On "Company Street" in camp as on Main Street at home. Coca-Cola means not the pause that refreshes, in your own refrigerator, ice-cold bottles of Coca-Cola are a symbol of a friendly way of living.

MONEY STANDARDS

WE may be getting into another of those old arguments about gold and silver, one of these times. The two metals are very important because the nations use them not merely as valuable metal, but as standards of value in general. That is, houses or groceries or clothes are rated as worth so much gold or silver, and vice versa.

Now governments have got into the habit of gauging the value of these metals not exactly in terms of gold or silver bullion in the metal market, but as exchangeable at home for goods and services at whatever rate the government chooses to fix. Thus the United States government may steady gold at the rate of $36 an ounce, when Russia, for example, can mine and sell it for about half that much. It is very confusing to simple minds.

WHAT A CHOICE!

HAVE the Nazis any sense? The American Broadcasting Station in Europe has reported that Franz von Papen is a probable German choice to negotiate peace terms with the United Nations.

Even among the Nazis it would be hard to find anyone more widely distrusted than von Papen. In the last war as military attache to the German embassy at Washington he was sent home because he organized spying and sabotage. After his recall a federal grand jury indicted him for conspiring to blow up the Welland canal. He engineered the summoning of Hitler to the chancellorship, and ever since has been his handy man when dirty diplomatic work was to be done.

As an envoy von Papen would be as welcome as smallpox.

WOMEN AND ELECTION

THERE are 600,000 more women voters than men. How will this affect the election?

Women are supposed to be stronger than men in support of peace. That does not throw much light on how they will divide in November. They are also supposed to be more conservative. But who would believe that when he considered their hats? Some also think that they would favor women candidates over their male opponents, and some think they wouldn't. The fact is that no one, even women themselves, really knows about women.

The secret of the costly German defeats lies in the changed strategy of the war. Once the rule was to attack the enemy head-on. Now it is to encircle them.

If the Germans were half as good at inventing secret weapons as they are at contriving new ways to say "retreat" they would have won the war long ago.

It's mostly the "strong" men who are abused in public office.

WASHINGTON Report

Writer Discusses Fun of Being Maryland Democrat

Recall Steady Loyalty of Tumulty to His President

By HELEN ESSARY
Central Press Columnist

WASHINGTON—"Dear Madam" writes a not-too-well-wisher. "What kind of politics are you, anyhow? Are you a New Dealer or are you a deweyed Dewey-ite? We've been arguing in our lunch club about you. And we say maybe you don't know yourself what you are—(Signed L. L.)"

Dear L. L.: I'm a Democrat. That's what I am. But I am also a native Baltimorean. Born and raised in the Maryland Free State. Such a background makes anybody peculiar. Especially when you add to Free State propensities many years of living in Washington, D. C., where the great put on their big and little acts.

Just "Agin'" How do I know what I am politically?—I am sure of this however, it is a powerful lot of fun to stir up a little constructive confusion now and then. That is my Maryland Free State disposition again. We are natural agin'-ers.

JOE TUMULTY, famous secretary to Woodrow Wilson, is well portrayed in the inspiring film, "Wilson." Mr. Tumulty was a colorful personality in the Wilsonian era. I am happy to see that Hollywood has caught his charm and made real on the screen the loyalty and encouragement he gave to the World War I president.

The success of "Wilson" gives me a chance to say to Hollywood: "I told you so!" (I realize that all Hollywood is not waiting anxiously on my next sentence.) For years I've been arguing with the help of printers' ink that the film producers should build their

The WASHINGTON MERRY-GO-ROUND

By DREW PEARSON

PLAN FOR OCCUPATION OF REICH

WASHINGTON—The War Department isn't advertising the details but it has completed plans for the occupation of Germany by American forces.

The Allies have agreed the occupation should be shared in roughly equal numbers by U. S., British and Soviet forces. This will permit the return to the U. S. A., of a maximum number of units, will also free thousands of trained men if necessary for polishing off the war against Japan.

The chief problem involved is getting enough transports to rush the men home, plus sorting out those entitled to go home first. The latter will be decided by the Army's "point demobilization system", and millions of forms for computing each GI's service are being printed and shipped overseas.

In 1918, American soldiers in France, deliriously overjoyed at victory, almost threw away their weapons, went wild for weeks and months. Officers, equally happy, suspended regulations, permitted their men to overrun the big cities of France, having a gay time.

After this armistice, things will be different. The whole plan has been charted to the last detail. Discipline will be maintained, but the War Department demobilization plan calls for the elimination of all "harrassing details not essential to the health and welfare of the troops."

GI TOURS OF EUROPE

Most of the troops will be excused from drill, will be given ample opportunity to see Europe while awaiting transports for home. Men who desire it will be taken on tours of the Continent under Army auspices.

A "Guided Tours of Europe" program is being worked out as a result of the experience, after the last war, of American doughboys who returned home having seen only the battle fronts plus the gay side of Paris. This time officials are anxious to let the boys learn something more of the people and places they have been fighting for.

Some GIs will be given an opportunity to go to school in Europe, attend universities such as the Sorbonne, Oxford, Cambridge. The Army will also organize classes for the younger GIs who want to pick up their studies during the brief period after the armistice before they return home.

The War Department recognizes it will be no easy job to get the Army home all at once. However, both Roosevelt and Gen. Marshall have emphasized the need for speeding discharges and, with no submarine warfare to cope with and no necessity for sailing in slow convoys, officials are confident that all except the Army of Occupation in Germany will be back within a few months.

NOTE—Greatest complaint against the Army point system is that it makes no allowance for men over 35, who apparently have to sweat it out until the end of the Japanese war, unless the War Department makes new allowances for them.

STETTINIUS MUZZLED

One of the saddest sights in the nation's capital is amiable, well-meaning Undersecretary of State Edward R. Stettinius plodding along the rough roads of diplomacy like a youngster wearing his daddy's size-12 boots.

Real fact is that, though Stettinius has now been Undersecretary for a year, he is still being led around by the hand, is looked on with disdain by many of his under-scenarios on the lives of individuals who have had dramatic careers. Cooked up plots and imaginary people are never convincing and seldom entertaining when they come out of that purple atmosphere of Hollywood.

The best recent war picture is "The Story of Dr. Wassell," founded on actual happenings in the life of a physician in the South Pacific. "Wilson" will have an enormous appeal. It is well done. But more importantly, it is based on a great personality, a great American personality. Whether you believe in the League of Nations or not, you cannot deny that Woodrow Wilson was a great personality. Hollywood has hardly thought of the rich material—the Wilsons and the Dr. Wassells—that have helped build up this nation. You may see any day in Washington men and women whose thrilling lives offer the motion picture artists a chance to give substance as well as entertainment to the screen.

SUCH PECULIAR THINGS pop into my head. Take for example this supposedly noble superiority of the white races. Or the civilized races—if we may be more general.

In this war, the white races have almost outdone the cannibals in cruelty. Indeed the cannibals have certain more admirable qualities than civilized peoples. I never have been close enough to help prove the superiority.

But cannibals kill to eat, my traveling friends tell me. They eat human beings because they believe that by so doing they absorb the strength, the best qualities of those they are eating. I'd rather keep even my weaker qualities within my own poor frame, but you will have to admit that civilized people kill with the thought of picking up a few human vitamins, physical or spiritual, thereby.

They kill and then bury the victims—if they have time. Get no value out of the nasty business at all as far as I can see. They just kill.

I do not advocate cannibalism in my own personal post-war program. Besides the people I might like to kill, come some dark Monday, would be too tough for good eatin'.

Fatigue Symptoms And Their Causes

By LOGAN CLENDENING, M.D.

IF I WERE a young physician casting about for a life work or a theme for study I would choose the symptom of fatigue. I believe that if a man understands that all medical mysteries will be opened to him.

Everyone knows what it is. Everyone has experienced it. It is the second commonest of all symptoms. Meakin found that 436 of a 1,000 complained most of weakness or fatigue. And yet familiar as it is what does it consist in? Where is it located? How can you describe it?

It occurs as a perfectly normal and explainable result of exertion, a long period of concentrated work. That is physiological fatigue. It occurs as a symptom of many, if not most, organic diseases, as a constant accompaniment, not the result of exertion. And, as we all know, in the form of "that tired feeling" it is the congenital endowment of a certain class of people who do nothing to deserve it. In fact the only classes of human beings who do not seem to suffer from fatigue sometime or other are idiots, Vice-Presidential candidates, and little boys.

Fatigue Manifestations

How do you know when you are fatigued? It may seem a foolish question, but, according to Dr. Donald Laird, who has studied it in a psychological laboratory, fatigue may manifest itself in many unexpected ways. Restlessness, for one. Excessive perspiration, candy and tobacco taste, flat, itchy, a tendency to laugh senselessly, a tendency to misplace constantly used articles, such as spectacles or false teeth, a tendency to change to another job before completing the one you are on, are some of the others.

Physiologists have talked for a long time about the accumulation of fatigue substances in the blood, but the only definitely proved chemical substance found is lactic acid.

Causes of Fatigue

Study of the causes of fatigue resulting from exertion show preponderantly that it is not so much the exertion itself that will cause fatigue as extraneous factors—such as lack of rest pauses, inadequate sleep between working days, and light, noise, vibration and ventilation. When noise in a work room is louder than 45 decibels it precipitates a body reaction consisting of tenseness of muscles both voluntary and involuntary and increased blood pressure. Professional typists, under test conditions, showed these reactions 18 per cent more when typing in a room with 55 decibels noise than in the same room with 40 decibels noise. Vibration is what tires you in automobile or train riding.

Nutrition, as might be expected, plays a constant and major role in reducing fatigue. No, not vitamins, just plain old sugar! At Colgate University fatigue recovery on climbing two flights of stairs was carefully measured and the fatigue recovery value of eating sugar before hand can be calculated in almost mathematical terms. The improvement on sugar days was 8.9 per cent better for the motor-visual reaction time, 11 per cent better for body sway with the ataxiograph, 2 per cent better for eye-hand coordination, and 1 1/2 per cent better for attention lag. That is getting it down pretty fine. It certainly justifies the mid-morning and mid-afternoon snack, and shows up the pop and cola and ice cream and candy bar vending machines not as a base commercial form of pandering, but as a highly scientific and properly accredited aid to industry.

QUESTIONS AND ANSWERS

M. W.—Should a woman who is pregnant take calcium phosphorus wafers? If so how much and what kind?

Answer: The pregnant woman needs lots of calcium and phosphorus, but the best way to get them is in ordinary food stuffs—milk, eggs, vegetables, fruits.

E. L. M.—I am a middle aged woman and for the past 18 months I have had a slight discharge from the left nipple. I have no lumps and no sore spots. What should I do?

Answer: Run, don't walk, to the nearest doctor and submit to a thorough examination. It may or may not be serious.

Prague, capital city of Czechoslovakia, has a wealth of medieval architecture equalled by few cities of Europe.

STARS SAY—

For Wednesday, September 20

A MODERATELY successful and busy day is read from predominant planetary aspects, both lunar and mutual, especially in political, diplomatic, community and corporation affiliations should move to satisfactory agreements, which should be made with care and consideration, and with a degree of precaution against speculative investments and other dubious alliances. In personal relations there may be happy readjustments with elders or relatives.

If It Is Your Birthday
Those whose birthday it is may anticipate a year of moderate success and happiness, with some sort of public or group recognition and cooperation. Employers, elders, and those in influential posts may be approached for support and favors with confidence, a friendly condition also to be found in connection with social, domestic or literary affiliations. Public relations and travel are encouraged.

A child born on this day should be possessed of versatility and talents fitting it for progress and a place in literary, business or domestic and social prestige and success, with elders cooperative.

CHAPTER TWENTY-FOUR

ANNE WAS glad it was the imperturbable surgeon who had been flustered when they met in Washington. Dr. Raynor, and not she. He had begged to talk to her. She had picked the bubble of his complaint. She had shown him that his importance, his telephone messages, his telegrams, his conferences, meant nothing to her now. She could see he couldn't grasp how she was marrying Dan—Dan in his ill-fitting suit, his outdoor look and long dark hair. Dan who looked in that place as if he had worked two weeks for a man who'd given him an old suit. She wanted Dwight Raynor to see all of it and how completely she had forgotten him and his world of success.

And once she felt he had seen and she had walked out of the hotel with Dan, the rest hadn't mattered. She had felt drained of strength and purpose as the taxi crossed the long bridge over the Potomac to Alexandria. If Dan really wanted to marry her, it was all right. At least he hadn't let her down during those precious minutes with Dr. Raynor. He had stood by her as she got back her self-respect. Her love for Dwight had been the biggest thing in her life. It had dominated her even before he told her he loved her. He had destroyed that love when he thrust her aside to marry money. It hurt more because money was so easy for him to earn. She had tried to run away from his memory, but it had always been at the back of her mind like a cloud shutting away the sun.

As she rode across the long bridge over the Potomac she felt glad of Dan Smith who held her hand. She would marry Dan and be happy with him for a few days and get Dwight Raynor out of her mind forever. She needed someone to love her, to hold her tight, to say he was crazy about her. Dan would wonder off, of course, but that didn't matter. She would only need a few days to be sure of herself again, to be sure the love for Dwight was deadlier than death.

Those had been her thoughts going to Alexandria to get married. Now, sitting at her window, she could smile up at the moon. Dan had done his part. He had made her laugh while he made her forget. For a few days they had been happy. They had wandered off to the mountains and slept out one night under the stars. He had held her close and kissed her throat and begged her to keep on wandering with him. Tonight while dancing they had both laughed about it. She had told him the holiday was over and now they had to work. He had kissed her and then Russell had come in. There had been consternation in Russell's eyes.

She smiled. She wondered if Dan would tell Russell, but somehow she felt he wouldn't. They had decided nobody was to know, when she made up her mind to come back. He had said he'd follow in a day or two, but she had had no belief in his appearing. It wasn't that she didn't want to see him again, but merely that she didn't expect to see him. He knew it. They had both needed each other that day in Washington. She liked to feel it was not all one-sided. She had told Dan so tonight.

The moon went behind a cloud and a faint chill seemed to come into the room. She got up and opened her door. The house was very quiet. For a moment she hesitated, then she went downstairs and out into the street. The lock was on the door, but she didn't intend going far. Morris street was very quiet. The moon was bright in the sky again and the big trees cast shadows on the rough brick sidewalks. Most of the houses were dark. The fixed window awning at Jane Dorset's Town Shoppe cast a heavy shadow. A dog lying there got up and brushed against her, thrusting his cold wet nose against her hand. She wasn't frightened. She felt him as a kindred spirit as he walked alongside her. Every moment he would look up at her as if asking where everyone was and why they weren't out walking under the moon.

A fat man came along, singing softly, "Ah, moon of my delight." He smiled as he came up to her and stopped. "Isn't it a glorious night? I felt I couldn't sleep." The dog pawed him happily and he patted the silky head. He went on, "I'm sure you must be Anne Wilson. I just go here tonight. Eleanor Bancroft told me about you."

Anne was polite but indifferent. All fat men, tall or short, were clumsy to her. He seemed to block the road. She agreed it was a beautiful night but was glad when he went off humming his song again. The dog, after a moment's hesitation, went along with him. She decided the man must be the writer who came to the inn. His choice of song indicated he was a sentimentalist. She was quite sure she didn't want to read any of his books.

The end of Morris street ran down to a wharf where small yachts tied up to refuel and children awned during the day. It was deserted now, or rather, she thought it was until she was actually there. Then she saw a tall figure leaning against a clump of pines. He came toward her and spoke softly.

"I thought it was you. I was hoping it would be."

She was not surprised. As with the dog outside the Town Shoppe, it was almost as if she had expected Russell to be there. She spoke very calmly.

"Mrs. Reynolds was all right. It was nothing much. She's asleep now."

Russell drew a deep breath. "I'm glad you came. I want to talk to you."

She turned her face to look up at the moon. She could almost feel the silver glow on her cheeks, as one feels sunshine. The idea made her smile. She was glad, too, that she had yielded to an impulse and come out for a few minutes. She hadn't wanted to talk to the fat man who sang sentimental songs, though she was sure he had wanted conversation. She had been in no mood. But this was different. Russell Smith had leanness and dignity—as Dwight Raynor had. She could look at him and feel glad Dwight had been swept out of her life. She felt very cool, very sure of herself.

"You might offer me a cigarette before you start scolding," she said lightly.

"I'm not going to scold. But I must talk to you."

He was very serious. His voice had a rich, mellow quality. As he gave her a cigarette and held a match she imagined him in court. She had always liked to imagine people doing their work. He fitted well into the picture, as he was interesting to talk to about books and general topics. She could picture him as she had Dwight Raynor in the operating room. Only there she had known him and worked with him. Only Dan couldn't be pictured doing anything in particular. Except sailing the boat and dumping her.

"WELL, IT'S YOUR GUESS"

THAT IS a remark you hear frequently at friendly games among able players. They realize there is plenty of thinking connected with the most important single play of a hand, the opening lead, but also that it is an effort to act efficiently in the dark. Often the soundest logic will go awry on a carefully chosen lead, whereas the worst lead in the hand would produce profitable results.

That bidding varied considerably at various duplicate tables, but all wound up with South in a spade game. It was startling, though, to note the consequences of different leads made by the West players.

One of the ablest in the game led the K of his partner's diamonds. The A won, a heart was led to the J and A and a club returned to the A. Two club discards were obtained quickly on the hearts, and two diamonds got ruffed, so that the only tricks lost were one each in the two red suits.

The same result came where a weak sister made the worst of all leads, on the bidding, a heart, enabling the declarer to get two club discards and ruff out the hearts.

Where a player made almost as bad, if not quite as bad, a lead, the spade 8, the declarer was held to four-odd because a repeat of the trump lead later kept South from ruffing more than one diamond, so he lost two tricks in that suit and one in hearts.

The only lead which beat the contract was made by the least experienced player in the duplicate. He opened the K from the unthinkable club holding. This, however, caused his side to score two tricks in clubs, plus one each in the red suits. Of course, if his partner had not held the Q—but he did.

Revolution Daughters Meet At Hamilton Home

Local History To Be Feature of Sessions

Pickaway Plains Chapter, Daughters of the American Revolution, met Tuesday at the home of Miss Marie L. Hamilton, West High street, with 55 members and guests present for the first session of the Fall and Winter season. Preceding the business and program hour, a delightful dessert course was served in the flower garden of the Hamilton home.

Mrs. Charles H. May, regent, assisted by Mrs. Helen Black Anderson, chaplain, opened the chapter in ritualistic form with the American Creed and the Salute to the Flag. Mrs. Anderson read a poem, suggested by the state historian, in reference to the incidents leading to the writing of the National Anthem. Mrs. May read a message from Mrs. Mae Talmadge, president general, for the month of September, commemorating Constitution Day. She recommended permanent hospital memorials for servicemen.

Mrs. Will Mack, secretary, read minutes of the May and June meetings. Miss Elsie Jewell, treasurer, reported for the year.

Board of management reported acceptance of the resignation of Mrs. J. B. Stevenson as first vice regent and Mrs. Charles Pugsley was elected to this office.

Mrs. James P. Moffitt, Sr., read the budget for 1944-45, which was accepted. Mrs. R. R. Bales, registrar, reported pending acceptances of several papers. Mrs. C. K. Hunsicker, Buddy Bag chairman, asked help in making the Christmas bags. Mrs. Pugsley, magazine chairman, reported 19 subscriptions to the Ohio D. A. R. paper. Mrs. Frank J. Bennett, chairman, asked to have the names of sons, husbands and brothers of D. A. R. members, who are in the armed forces.

It was requested that members who planned to attend the Central District meeting at Marion on September 28 make their reservations in advance. Any member may attend, no delegates were appointed.

Miss Mary Heffner, chairman of the cancelled postage stamp project, asked that members continue saving them.

It was announced that two amendments to the constitution could be voted on at the next session.

Local history will be included in the year's study.

Mrs. B. R. Bales, program chairman, presented Mrs. Frank J. Bennett, who read a pamphlet, "Early Circleville," written by her grandfather, John Groce. The writings had been prepared in booklet form by her father, Charles E. Groce, for the centennial observed in Circleville on October 2, 1910.

Assisting Miss Hamilton as hostesses were: Mrs. Frank Reichelderfer, Mrs. Lawrence Johnson, Mrs. Ella Hornbeck, Mrs. Martin Cromley, Mrs. Charles Gusman, Mrs. Ed Bell and Mrs. Elenn R. Bales.

Child Conservation League

The open meeting of the 1944-1945 season of the Child Conservation league was held Tuesday at the home of Mrs. G. D. Phillips, Beverly road, with 17 members and one guest, Mrs. Enid Denham, present. A covered dish luncheon at 1 p. m. was served at small tables. Lovely Fall flowers were used in the colorful decorations of the Phillips home.

Mrs. Ted Huston, new president, was in the chair for the meeting and received the reports of committee chairmen.

Mrs. Robert Adkins was admitted to membership in the league. Mrs. P. C. Routzahn was appointed as treasurer to replace Mrs. Frank Bowling, who had resigned. Mrs. Clark Will was appointed historian of the league.

Resolutions regarding V-Day were read by Mrs. John H. Dunlap, Jr. The resolutions are: "Whereas: The surrender of Germany will fill all hearts with joyfulness to God and a desire for rejoicing; and Whereas: The defeat of Germany will mean only

Mrs. John W. Eshelman, program chairman, presented the guest speaker, Mrs. Enid Denham, who spoke on "How the Library Helps Children to Grow Up in War Time."

Mrs. Denham, who is librarian of the Circleville Public Library, spoke of the place that the library can fill in the lives of our children. Of the interest and pleasure that it can bring to them. A new children's room has been opened from the first through the sixth grades. A story hour is held every Wednesday at 4:30 p. m., giving the children much pleasure and is helping to acquaint them with their library.

Mrs. Denham said: "In these times, our children need a sense of security; that it is important for them to feel safe. By giving them all the education possible now, we are helping them to be resourceful and independent in the future."

At the close of her talk, Mrs. Denham displayed some of the newest children's books in the library.

Mrs. Luther Bower was in charge of the arrangements for the luncheon.

MILWAUKEE 9 IS ELIMINATED FROM PLAYOFFS

By International News Service

Pennant-winning Milwaukee was eliminated from the American Association playoffs today as Louisville rallied to win the sixth game of the series, 7-5.

The Colonels dropped two of the first three games played on the Brews' home lot, but after moving to Louisville they copped three straight.

Both teams scored a single run in the first inning and Milwaukee registered three runs in the top half of the sixth. Louisville came back in its half of the frame to tie the score with a three-run rally of its own. A home run by Steve Barath with two mates on plated all three of Louisville's scores.

A double by Snitz Browne with the bases filled allowed two runs to cross the plate in the seventh inning and Browne scored later on a passed ball.

Milwaukee got to Relief Pitcher Dwight Simmonds for one run in the ninth. Simmonds, who relieved Starter Mel Deutsch in the sixth, was credited with the victory. Don Hendrickson was charged with the loss.

Toledo's scheduled game at St. Paul was rained out and will be played tonight, weather permitting, with Don Whitehead taking the mound for Toledo and Bill Buker for St. Paul.

Garry is the young man who started out on the early morning show, "Everything Goes" and soon had a following comparable to most evening programs.

Mysterious murders of high

Nazi officials in occupied France (that is, when it was occupied) provide the theme of "Bluebeard of Bellac," a thriller-chiller starring Merle Oberon, on "Suspense" on Thursday. It is the story of a doctor's wife living with her husband in Nazi-occupied France when several high Gestapo officers are mysteriously murdered.

Most in demand orchestra conductor in west coast network today is Robert Armstrong who is being signed by most of the "prestige" programs. Armstrong currently writes original background music and conducts it on "Cavalcade of America" and "This Is My Best." Now comes word that he's also been packed to direct the orchestra on the new Nelson Eddy program which starts Wednesday.

Alan Young, kidding his mother-in-law, created a character for one of his recent radio scripts called "Hatchet-Face Grimes." Mrs. Grimes, who can go along with a gag, wrote him that she had already consulted two attorneys and had been advised that she had an air-tight case for libel. Write the merry lady: "You receive a letter from me only because Western Union wouldn't take my wire."

The American Theatre Wing, which guides the "Stage Door Canteen" radio program, Friday nights has added still another division to its many activities on behalf of the war effort—a Script Division, whose purpose is to make available to organizations and school groups approved war scripts of all types.

When Abbott and Castello resume broadcasting Thursday, Oct. 5, it will mark the start of their fifth year as a top radio comedy team.

Ed Latimer, frequent scriptural murderer on "Mr. and Mrs. North," is going to take a holiday from crime. He's slated for George Abbott's next comedy production on Broadway, as yet untitled.

Four Chicks and Chuck, new singing quintet, won such rousing response after their airbow on the RADIO HALL OF FAME recently that they'll probably be regulars when the show returns to the original format, spotlight-

Special Election To Be Called On City Water Plant Issue

DECEMBER 5 SET FOR BALLOTING IN CIRCLEVILLE

Citizens To Decide Whether Municipality Should Buy Local Utility

Circle residents will vote at a special election Dec. 5 to decide whether or not the city will purchase the Ohio Water Service company's local plant.

City council, meeting Tuesday night, set the special election for Dec. 5 after members were informed by City Solicitor J. W. Adkins that a special election was necessary if the question was to be settled soon. Otherwise the referendum demanded by the 1402 signers of a petition filed Sept. 12 and 13 with the mayor would have to be held until the November, 1945, election.

Solicitor Adkins explained that the petition was filed under the constitutional provisions of Ohio law. He stated that the petition was filed too late to be placed on the 1944 regular election ballot because such a petition must be filed 60 days before the election to be placed on the ballot. A special election can be held between 60 and 120 days after the petition is filed.

Cost Up To $1000
Cost of the special election, estimated at between $800 and $1000 must be borne by the city.

Council voted to receive the petition filed with the mayor and place it on file, then passed the ordinance ordering the board of elections to hold the special election.

Also passed were ordinances appropriating money for a new boiler at Berger hospital; placing the collector of parking meter funds under bond; authorizing payment of a claim against the city; providing limited parking on Mound street near the post office; a resolution authorizing the safety director to advertise for bids and enter into a contract for the hospital boiler.

Under provisions of a new ordinance the collector of funds and service man of the parking meters will be placed under a $1,000 bond.

Boiler Burned Out
The legislation on the new boiler at the hospital was made necessary because the boiler installed a few months ago recently burned out.

One ordinance passed appropriates $5 for payment to Mrs. John Rodgers for injuries she received when the car of Mrs. Clarissa Talbot, in which she was a passenger, hit a defective portion of a city street.

All the ordinances were passed under suspension of rules except the parking measure which was given its third reading. The legislation provides for 15-minute parking on Mound street from the first driveway east of the post office to Court street.

Council delayed action on a resolution authorizing the state highway department to construct a bridge across Hargus Creek into Ted Lewis park until plans for the project are presented to council.

Members also heard a letter from Walter H. Nelson, 718 South Court street, seeking $33 for damages to his car which collided with a police cruiser Aug. 9. Service committee was ordered to study sewage rental rates and make recommendations for some revisions.

Councilmen Ray Cook, Ray Anderson and George Crites were named by President John C. Goeller to a special educational committee on the waterworks question.

lings in the Department. He is rarely if ever permitted to meet with any one unless several State Department officials are seated by his side to give him the right answers.

In addition, Stettinius' press conferences are a travesty, due to the worried presence of press-relations chief Mike McDermott. Actually, Stettinius is ready and willing to trust the press and public, but Hull and McDermott won't let him.

Best example came the other day when Stettinius met with reporters to tell the results of the Dumbarton Oaks conference. As the meeting started in the State Department's plush, pompous conference room, McDermott jumped up, said the meeting would be "off the record." Whenever Stettinius started to answer questions, McDermott left the room to answer a phone call.

Later, Stettinius pointed out that, if Dumbarton Oaks were a completely American show, the public might be better informed. McDermott blew up at this, said, "The State Department isn't trying to pass the buck to the British or the Russians." Meekly echoed Stettinius: "Of course we are not trying to pass the buck. We assume the responsibility."

Many competent diplomatic observers wonder when Roosevelt will either give Stettinius his head or ship him to an overseas diplomatic post. One wiseacre asked testily, after a brush with Steeinus the other day, "When will Roosevelt stop sending out boys to do a man's work?"

INSIDE GERMANY

Allied leaders, after surveying effects of intelligence work inside the Reich, are now finally convinced there is no chance of an honest anti-Hitler revolt by the German people. What's more, efforts to spawn a pro-Allied underground in Germany have met with failure.

Principal reason is that the Gestapo controls everything—including the Army hierarchy. The communist underground has been completely liquidated; also all remnants of the Socialist and social-Democratic parties.

The only real hope Allied military leaders have is that the eleven million slave laborers brought to Germany by Hitler from Poland, Russia, France, Belgium, Holland and Norway, will conduct an increasing campaign of sabotage, perhaps giving heart to large groups of Germans to join them.

A year ago, Hitler and his henchmen kicked these slave laborers around at will, fed them poorly, worked them brutally under a whip lash. Of late, this pressure has been eased. In some instances, Nazis have reportedly given special treatment to their captives on the chance that they themselves will not be too badly punished by the Allies when Germany falls.

It is now even possible for a few of these captives to escape from Germany—for a price in foreign money—as petty Nazi police try to accumulate enough foreign currency to live safely during the Allied occupation.

Just what efforts have been made by the Allies to contact the millions of slave laborers remains a military secret, which may make exciting reading as soon as it can be revealed.

MERRY-GO-ROUND

Several Congressmen peeking in the House Restaurant last week thought they saw Governor Dewey lunching with Representative Harold Knutson of Minnesota. It wasn't Dewey, however, but Dana Bennett of Agriculture Service Associates. A descendant of James Gordon Bennett, he is a magazine writer who was nearly mobbed when he entered the Stevens Hotel during the Chicago Republican Convention last June. His resemblance to Dewey is remarkable. When the Translux newsreel theatres decided on their lobby political poll, they ordered twice as many Roosevelt pins as Dewey pins. Before he came to Congress, Senator Wallace

White, Maine Republican, three times ran for Mayor of Lewiston, each time being soundly trounced by Democrats. In the last election, he remained in Washington—and Lewiston went Republican. "I guess it is a good thing for my party when I stay out of Maine," laughed Senator White.

SOLID LINE SHOWS ROUTE OF NEW GAS LINE

1067 out of 1267 Miles on New Texas Gas Line Completed

NO. 8 COMPRESSOR STATION IN KENTUCKY

SINKING LINES UNDER CUMBERLAND RIVER, TENNESSEE

DOING DOUBLE DUTY

LOWERING LINE IN TRENCH IN MISSISSIPPI

On September 8th The Tennessee Gas and Transmission Company reported 1067 miles of pipeline completed out of 1267 miles on the new 24-inch line which will bring additional Texas gas to supplement the Appalachian supply. Compressor stations, river crossings and other construction essential to operation of the line are progressing satisfactorily. Additional gas definitely will be available to our customers from that source for this winter.

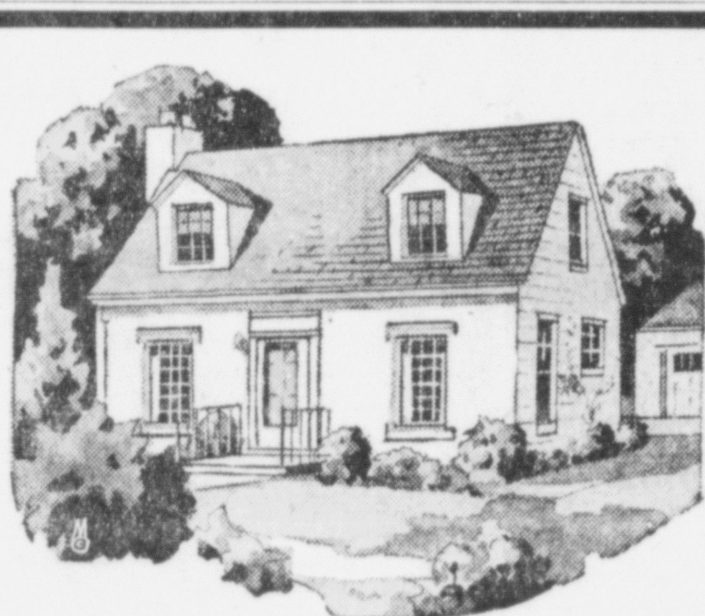

Meanwhile "off-season" gas has been taken from another Texas gas line during the summer months and stored back into the ground to be available to the market this winter. We are starting the coming winter with more gas in underground storage than we had last winter. Depletion of gas in our own wells is being replaced by our drilling program in Ohio.

In spite of this more cheerful picture in gas supply, it still will be necessary to avoid waste in using the fuel. The needs of war plants still must be met. Shortages of other fuels, such as coal and oil, increase the demands for gas.

Weatherstripping, wall and ceiling insulation, storm doors and windows are a few of the recommended fuel savers that add to your comfort as well as subtract from your fuel bill.
